Article 7 The prices of products or services, value of gifts and total amount of prizes in this Guidelines are determined according to the following standards:

(1) Prices of products or services: The reasonable market prices that are given to trading counterparts at the time a business promotes sales with gift-giving activity.

(2) Value of gifts: The value may be determined in order according to the following standards:

Directly from the business that promotes sales with gift-giving activity.

In the case that the gifts is produced by the business itself or acquired by the business from the market at reasonable price, the value for the said gifts is determined by its costs of production or acquisition.

In the case that the business has acquired the gifts based on the trading terms other than price, or the aforementioned cost of acquisition is not available, then the value of gifts is determined by its retail price.

Other reasonable and approved standards.

(3) Total amount of prizes: The value may be determined in order according to the following standards:

Directly from the business that promotes sales with prize-giving activity.

In the case that the prizes (either product or service) are produced by the business itself or acquired by the business from the market at reasonable price, the total amount for the said prize (either product or service) is determined by its costs of production or acquisition.

In the case that the business has acquired the prizes (either product or service) based on the trading terms other than price, or the aforementioned cost of acquisition for the prizes (either product or service) is not available, then the value of prizes is determined by the retail price of the said prizes (either product or service).

Other reasonable and approved standards.

Article 8 The amount of gifts and prizes governed by these regulations may be amended in accordance with the economic and social conditions.

Article 9 These regulations take effect on the date of promulgation.
